Question of the day

Which food would you eliminate from the world so that no one could ever eat it again?

- ❖ Choose one food that you dislike so much or think is so bad, harmful, or unnecessary that you'd want to completely remove it from existence — meaning no one, anywhere, could ever eat it again.

Topic of the Day:

➤ Present Perfect Continue / Present Perfect Progressive

➤ Present Perfect Continue tense (Present Perfect Progressive)

- The present perfect progressive (also called present perfect continuous) describes actions that began in the past, continue into the present, and may continue into the future.

Structure:

- ✓ Subject + have/has + been + verb-ing

Explanation:

- have / has → Present Perfect auxiliary
- been → past participle of be
- verb+ ing → shows the ongoing action (progressive aspect)

✓ Subject–Verb Agreement & Contractions

- have → used with I, you, we, they
- has → used with he, she, it

Subject	Auxiliary	Example
I / You / We / They	have been	I have been working.
He / She / It	has been	She has been sleeping.

✓ Contractions:

- I have → I've
- You have → You've
- He has → He's
- She has → She's
- We have → We've

Mind the Topic

✓ Contractions use with subject pronouns and sometimes singular Nouns.

✗ Not typically used with plural nouns.

Subject Type	Contraction	Example	Comment
Pronoun	✓ Yes	He's been reading.	Common
Singular noun	✓ Yes	The student's been working.	Acceptable
Plural noun	✗ Avoid	The students've been working.	Sounds unnatural

✓ Time Expressions

◆ “for”

- “for” is used to show how long an action has been happening — the length of time.
- It’s followed by a period (hours, days, month years, etc.).

✚ Examples:

- I’ve been studying for two hours.
- She’s been living here for eight years.
- They’ve been waiting for 30 minutes.

◆ “since”

- “since” shows when the action started — the exact point in time it began.
- It’s followed by a specific time, date, or event.

✚ Examples:

- I’ve been working here since 2020.
- He’s been watching TV since morning.
- We’ve been friends since childhood.

- We always use “since” to show a part of the same day (morning, evening), or a period in life (childhood).

✓ Examples of Present Perfect Progressive:

- I have been working at this company for eight years.

- They have been waiting for two hours.
 - She has been studying English since 2020.
 - I've been waiting since morning.
 - I've been studying grammar for three months.
 - They've been talking for over an hour.
